GRACE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

WINONA LAKE, INDIANA

1968

To us

Dr. Kent is sincerity

dignity warmth humility

strength

He has shown us

long suffering,

The gracious spirit,

The Christian life,

Devoting himself

to serving Christ here,

Pointing out the way.

In him

We have seen

Grace.

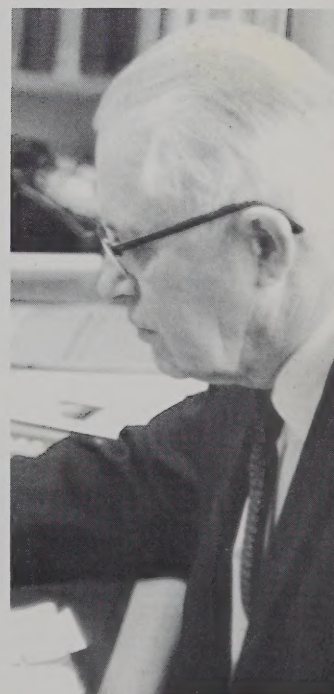

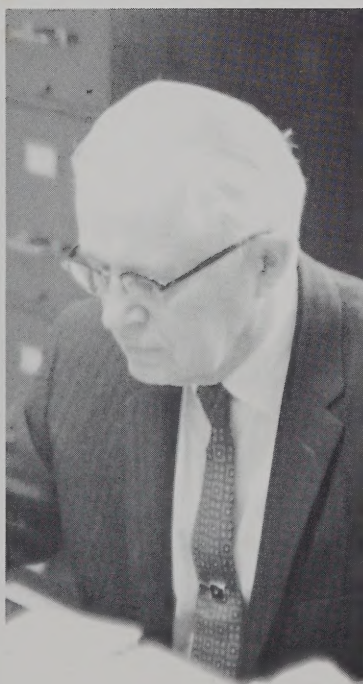

Homer A. Kent, Sr.

In Dedication . . .

To a man who presents many faces . . .

Faithful fifteen years in the pastorate,
Author of two successful books,
Professor of church history
And practical theology since 1940,
Vice president of Grace Seminary and College,
A capable teacher and leader,
A sincere disciple of Christ,
A man of God . . .

To such a man
We dedicate this book.

Grace is

A school

Taught by ten godly men,

Committed to Christ,

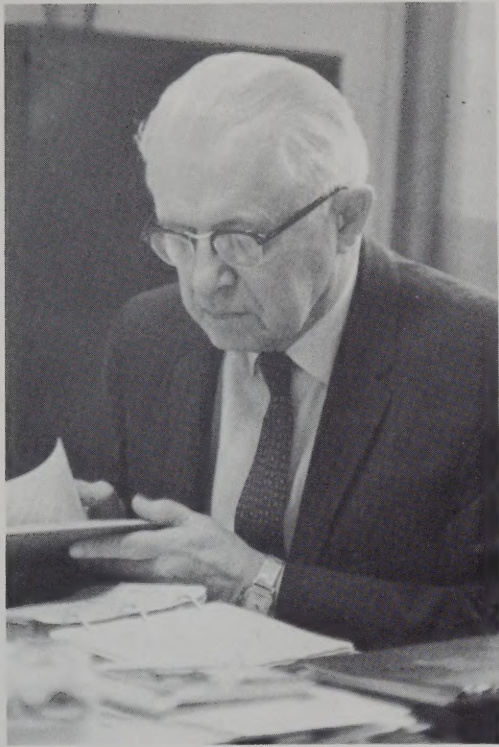

Searching the Scriptures for themselves,

Imparting faithfully the full counsel of God,

Dedicated to training men . . .

To handle the Word of Life.

Grace is

Earnest students

Searching to know God's Word and God's will more perfectly.

Studies are an integral part in the preparation
For the ministry that lies ahead.

Classes, seminars, research,

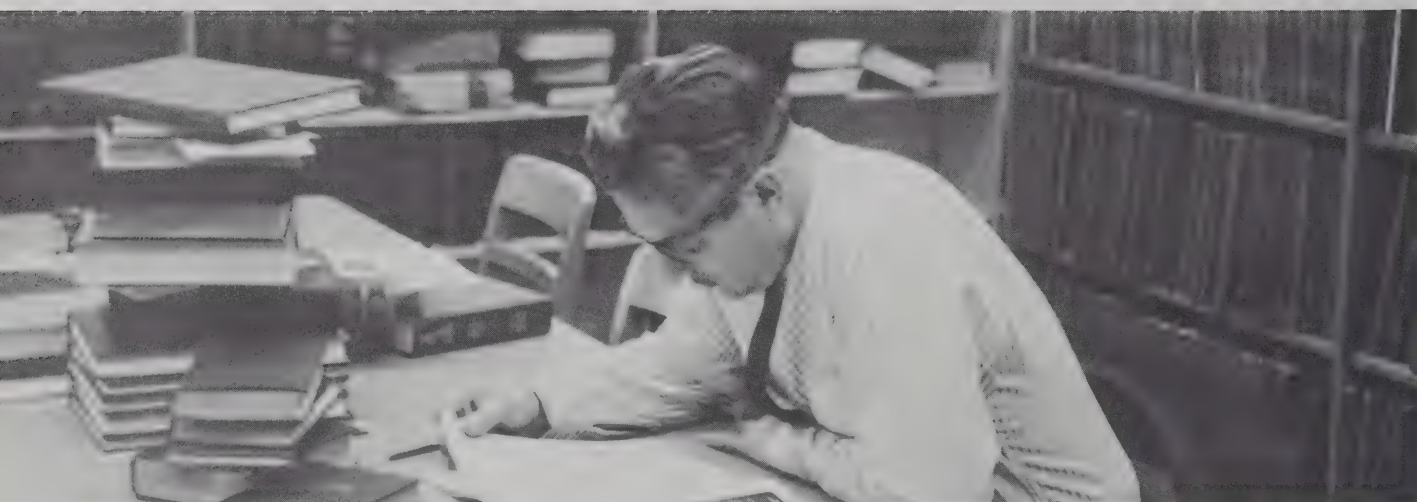

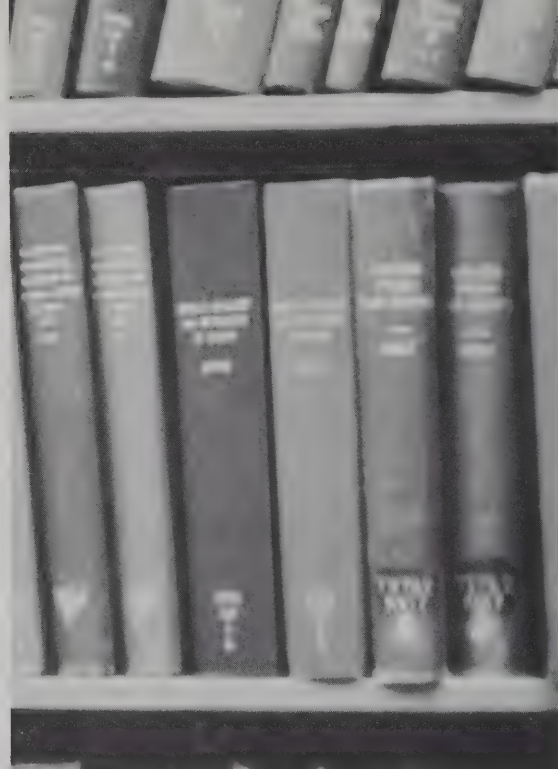

Review, discussions, readings,

All are basic to seminary studies.

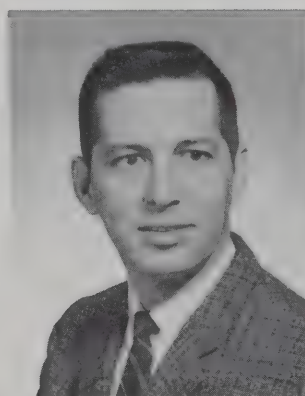

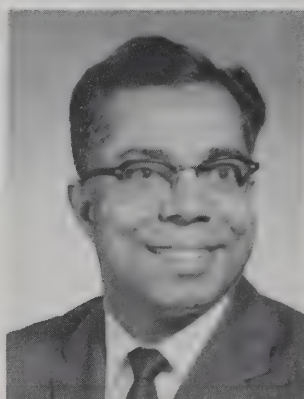

Doctor of Theology

Research in depth, emphasis on original languages and recent archeological discoveries, and the completion of a major dissertation mark the doctoral program.

William Bellshaw

Chacko Joseph

Charles Smith

Arthur Walton

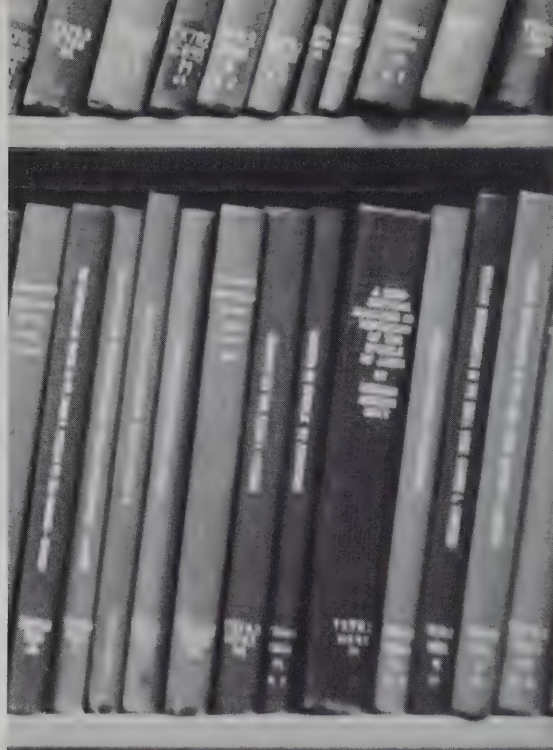

Dr. John C. Whitcomb directs the Post-Graduate Division. Conducting seminars, advising students, approving dissertations, his help is invaluable to candidates in the program.

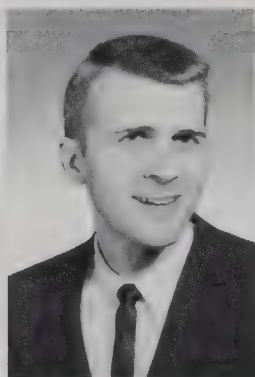

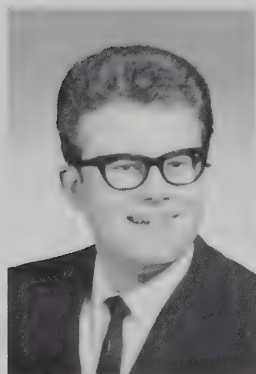

Master of Theology

Geared to meet the demand for further studies beyond the B.D., the Masters program calls for intensive personal investigation, stimulating seminar sessions, and the completion of a master's thesis.

Yes, a Masters, but still a long way to go . . .

Seniors

look back at three years, reams of notes volumes of papers scores of exams numerous sermons and one exhausting monograph.

Most will leave Grace for many tasks
in many places,
to foreign fields to home churches to further studies
but all to serve . . .
Him.

Midders

Being half way through, seminary is 'old hat' by now.
Exams no longer scare, one just worries a little.

Midders know success, defeat truth, error blessing
and some chastening, too.
The Lord is still leading molding preparing.

It's too late to quit—Besides, it isn't His will.

Another thrilling night in the stacks.

"Hey, Marley, verse 29 is a Whitcomb question."

"Yeah, Ray, better know who Bilhah and Zilpah were."

Juniors

For these whom God has called seminary makes new demands.

more books to read,
more papers to write,
better quality is required.

Yet blessing is found in every course and each professor is there to counsel.

The ancients have not discovered all the truth—far from it.

The goal is in sight,
the Lord is leading,
blessing is sure to come.

these and more fill the hours.

Chapel

Chapel provides time for reflection,
for direction,
and for heart-mind balance.
The programs vary from student body prayer meetings to special series all of which are designed to honor Him.

From archebiopoesis to zygois, Dr. Wilder-Smith, professor of medicine and pharmacology at University of Illinois Medical Center, explained the biological impossibility of theistic evolution in a week of concentrated lectures.

Missionary Conference

Planned jointly by the seminary and college, World Missions Fellowship presents the annual Missionary Conference, this year built on the theme, "We Faint Not . . ."

Rev. Spiros Zodhiates, President of American Mission to Greeks.

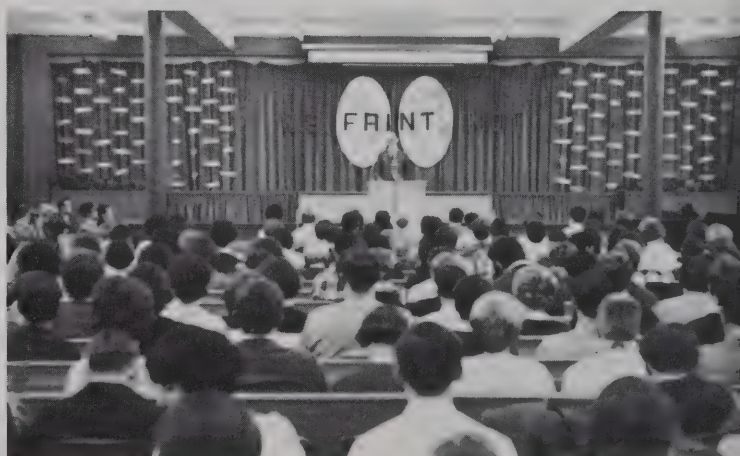

The college gospel teams visited seminary sessions.

Rev. Bill Shade, founder and director of Teen Encounter Center in York, Pa.

Rev. David Cox, home director for Word of Life in Brazil.

Rev. Tom Julian, France, addresses evening session.

Dr. Warren Wiersbe

Bible Conference

Alumni return and students are freed from classes to hear outstanding Christian men.

The Bauman Memorial Lectures and Miller Memorial Lectures highlight this special conference.

Dr. John F. Walvoord

Dr. Torrey Johnson

Daily coffee hour provided time to visit and discuss.

Christian Service . . .

Various are the avenues of Christian Service engaged in by Grace Students, required for graduation—yet a labor of love.

Dave plays for a boys' club.

Tom comforts the aged.

Ray 'cracks a funny' in Sunday School.
